One of the best perks of a destination wedding? Marrying in front of an incredible backdrop that you just can't get at home. We found the top 10 ceremony vistas, from a sunset-facing strand in Costa Rica to a bird's-eye view in Belize.

MANUEL ANTONIO, COSTA RICA » "When the couple came to me, they said they wanted either a private island, a Florida beach or a winery in New York," says wedding planner Melissa Martin of Stylish Occasions. But when she found Villa Punto de Vista, perched on a hillside near Costa Rica's most scenic national park, the couple quickly changed course. The biggest selling points? The private beach, the sunset and the villa itself — though with six couples quick-chick spaces and even an elevator, the word villa doesn't seem to apply. The property, which sleeps 27 in its 10 bedrooms, can accommodate sit-down dinners for up to 100 on the open-air rooftop deck, which looks out to Manuel Antonio Bay. The estate has even hosted the likes of Ludacris, so you know you're in good company. Five nights for 20 people from $20,000 low season, including butler-managed service staff.
